21 DEAD AT CUMNOCK

EXPLOSION YESTERDAY EVENING

WESLEY CLEGG ONE OF THE KILLED

Explosion Occurred in Mine in the Afternoon---Supposed Cause---Second Great Disaster at Mine---Surgeons Working Over the Injured---The Dead and Dying. Many Wounded Cannot Live---The Telegram Has a Man on the Field.

Anotherr awful explosion occurred in the coal mine at Comnock in Chatham county at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The explosion is supposed to have been caused by a miner opening his lamp and thus igniting the gas of the mine.

Seventy men were in the mine at the time of the explosion, and the number of dead is unknown.

At three o'clock this afternoon twenty-one dead bodies had been taken out, together with a number of wounded. Large crowds of people from Sanford and adjoining towns have hastened to the spot, which is nearly one mile from the main line of the old Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley track.

Any news is exceeding hard to obtain. The morning papers had only a line about the disaster, though it occurred yesterday afternoon.

The Telegram sent a man down on the first train leaving here, but up until 5 o'clock had not been able to get any message from him. The telegraph facilities are very poor

The dead number both whites and blacks. One of the men killed is Mr. Wesley Clegg, a brother of Mr "Billie" Clegg, and a cousin of Mr. W. F. Clegg, both of this place.

The crew of the afternoon train which came by Cumnock at about 3 o'clock report that big crowds are hurrying to the scene of the disaster, and that scenes of the utmost horror prevail. Such surgeons as can be obtained are working with the wounded.

This is the second great disaster that has occurred at this place, in which a large number of persons were killed.

Spinsters Coming.

The spinsters are coming. If you want a good laugh, see them at the Academy of Music Friday night. Sister Florence Goodhope, of Liberty, will make a ringing speech on "Woman's Rights" in the Spinsters Convention which meets in the Academy of Music Friday night. Don't fail to hear Penelope.

The compromise in the case of the United States against the property of W. O. Couch has been accepted by the commissioner of internal revenue.

Makes Brilliant Flames.

People who live on the New England coast like to use ocean driftwood as fuel in open fireplaces. It is impregnated with copper and ocean salts and when burned gives out the most brilliant colored flames. It is asserted that a New Bedford dealer has orders for the wood from all parts of the country, and even from Europe, and ships hundreds of barrels of it yearly.

Various attempts have been made to imitate this wood by artificial process, but without success. Long submersion in the sea water is necessary to produce the brilliant flames.—New York Tribune.

Limits to His Gratitude.

"I feel that I ought to make some acknowledgment to the people who were so kind to us during my late wife's last sickness," said Mr. Phroogle, "and I would like to have you insert this card of thanks in a prominent place in this week's paper."

"We are obliged to make a charge for these notices," replied the editor of The Weekly Blizzard, looking over the manuscript, "and this will cost you $1."

"Then you needn't publish it," rejoined Mr. Phroogle. "I am not quite as grateful as all that comes to."—Chicago Tribune.

AT THE A. AND M. COLLEGE.

Reported for the Telegram.

Monday evening at 8 o'clock Rev. S. A. Peeler delivered a very able address before the Y. M. C. A. and Y. P. S. C. E. of the A. & M. College. Rev. Peeler is a very impressive, pleasing and forceful speaker. We feel safe in saying every one present was benefited by hearing such an excellent address. The speaker emphasized the necessity of one's learning how to think in order to maintain his place in world.

Yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock the Electric and Collegian Literary societies had their closing exercises. The main feature of the program was an address by Mrs. James B. Dudley, of Wilmington. Mrs. Dudley spoke on "Literature" and handled her subject in an eloquent manner, showing the necessity of blending with knowledge of agriculture and mechanics the knowledge of the literature of the world. The address was brilliant and interesting from beginning to end. Mrs. Dudley may very properly be called one of the great women of the race. The advice given to students and others present, if carefully considered, will be productive of much good.

At 8 o'clock p. m. the College Colloquy, "What of the Race," was rendered. There were a number of students representing the various departments of the college and each one performed his part well.

Today at 2 o'clock the class day exercise of the senior preparatory department took place and at 8 o'clock this evening will be the graduating exercises of that class. The public is cordially invited to attend all these exercises.

The Lady and the Teeth.

"I was called one day to a certain hotel to give chloroform to a young woman who was about to undergo a slight surgical operation to remove a morbid growth in the ear," said a physician. "The patient, as it developed on my arrival, had been married only a few days before and was in the city with her husband on their bridal tour. Although quite handsome, she was no longer exactly in her first youth, and she was very much averse to having her husband present at the operation. However, he insisted, and she finally agreed that he should stay, but I noticed that she seemed very nervous and preoccupied.

"The operation, as I said before, was trifling. She took the chloroform easily and all went well until she was just regaining consciousness, when she opened her mouth, and out fell a set of false teeth. She had said nothing about that detail, and the truth was that she had hoped, poor woman, to pass through the ordeal without the fact of her wearing such things being known to her husband.

"But the effect on that individual was entirely unexpected. He gave one horrified glance and then rushed at the old surgeon and seized him by the throat. 'You infamous scoundrel!' he yelled. 'You have broken my poor darling's jaw!'

"At that stage of affairs I beat a retreat. I never did learn exactly what the husband thought had happened or what sort of explanation was offered."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Origin of the Boat.

Only lately has the original boat been found in use and among the savages of the south sea islands. There the natives take the stump of a tree whose roots offer a good seat, and, launching this primitive craft, they paddle around as contentedly as if there was no such thing as a European steamer, and, to tell the truth, they do not suspect its existence.

There can be no doubt whatever that in this stump boat we have the original method of transportation by water. Accident certainly contributed to this discovery.

A tired swimming savage found a log floating near him. He grasped it and found that it held him above water. He mounted his log and used a floating branch to propel the log.

It was but a step from the log to the more comfortable root of a tree and another step from the branch propeller to a shaped paddle.

Well Equipped.

She—You used to call me an angel.

He—Yes, I remember I called you "my angel without wings."

She—But you never do any more.

He—No, I've begun to believe that you have wings, after all. It's so easy for you to fly into a passion.—Catholic Standard and Times.

AN UNIVERSAL EDUCATION.

THE ONLY HOPE OF SALVATION.

Prof. Smith's Eloquent Address at the High School Reunion Last Night—The Question of Taxation by no Means Settled —The State Demands That Her Children be Educated—Schools the Greatest Producers of Wealth—Wonderful Growth of the Greensboro Schools.

The friends of public education in Greensboro turned out en masse last night to witness the reunion exercises of the former graduates of the High School and listened to an eloquent address by an an alumnus of the institution.

The exercises were opened by Rev. Dr. J. C. Rowe, who read the 67 Psalm and offered prayer.

"Spring Song" was charmingly rendered by Misses Elsie and Lillian Weatherly, after which Miss Mozelle Andrews sang "The Spring Morning."

Miss Nellie Glascock, the bright young president of the class of 1900, welcomed the former graduates in a few well chosen and happily expressed words.

The speaker of the evening, Prof. David B. Smith, principal of the West End Graded School, Winston, was introduced by Prof. E. B. Broadhurst, who took occasion to speak of the great educational awakening in North Carolina. He presented Prof. Smith as "the best fruit of the Greensboro Graded Schools system"

Prof. Smith is one of the many students of the Greensboro Graded Schools who reflects credit and honor upon his alma mater and native town, and who is winning distinction in his chosen life work. Those who heard him last night could but feel pleasure in the thought that he was a Greensboro boy. Prof. Smith said:

"Seven years ago, from this rostrum, I received my diploma from the hands of your most excellent Superintendent. Since that time I have not been permitted to return here at your annnal festival occasion, which marks the closing of your school, and it is double pleasure to be here at this time and to speak for a little while to my old schoolmates and fellow alumni.

"The occasion which brings you together this evening is significant and full of meaning and promise for the future perpetuity and usefulness of your institution. For in this modern day of rush and hurry and stern competitive endeavor no institution, whether it be of a public or private nature can hope to succeed unless it can marshal in its aid every friend and supporter.

"The question of taxation for public schools in the cities of North Carolina is by no means a settled question, and I daresay there are men in town, perhaps in sight of this school building, men of means, men of property and of influence, men whose children come here day after and derive the benefit of its training and culture, who would not hesitate one moment to reach forth their hand and strike this instiution to the ground. In those times of crisis, when the question of school opportunities for all the children will be raised and must be answered, and answered successfully, who can better present the claims of your school system, who can better oppose its common enemy, who can do better battle in its behalf than the one hundred and forty alumni, faithful men and women, who have received the beginnings of their training here. And it will be successful. I absolutely refuse to see any other outcome. Give me one hundred and forty devoted men and women, men and women with one purpose in view, and who will know no defeat; and let me send them out in this town, and I can accomplish anything. Unite your one hundred and forty alumni into one solid, aggressive band; let them rally as one man to the support of your school system; let them join hands and form a magic circle about this institution here, and they may deride and laugh at the destroying attempts of the violator. And as one of your members I bid you godspeed in your work and congratulate you that it is beginning with the greatest educational revival that has ever visited the southern section of this continent.

"Forty years ago the the old Southland, with its caste distinctions, lay serenely dependent upon the black slave labor; the two extremes of aristocrat and serf; gentleman and slave met, there being no middle class, no trained skilled toiler. In the North the two extremes mentioned were not found, and every man belonged to the middle class. Every man was a skilled laborer. Since statistics show that the average toiler can produce six times as much wealth as the average untrained toiler, it easily follows that the North developed six times more rapidly than did the South. In 1790 the group of free states and the slave states were about equal in population and wealth. In 1861, or 70 years later, those same free states had four times as large a population, and the difference in wealth was even greater. While we in the South were gaining one thousand in population the north was gaining four thousand, and while we were making one thousand dollars, they were making more than six. Why was this difference? Was it because the people of the South were less energetic and less industrious? Was it because a weaker blood flowed through their veins? Was it because they were a debased type of the Anglo-Saxon race? Certainly no one will for a moment contend that they were lacking in any of these things. Certainly the men who bore the brunt of battle on a thousand battle fields, who poured out their blood like water, were not deficient in courage, industry or natural ability. Then why this great disparity in the development of the two sections? The answer is simply this—education. On one side of Mason' and Dixon's line was an army of trained, skilled, educated toilers. On the other side was an army of ignorant, untrained and unskilled toilers. The trained labor is six times as productive of wealth as the untrained, hence the South, possessing the untrained labor, fell behind in the race. The contest came, the shock was received and borne and returned, but at last we were defeated, and the old South lay crushed and mangled and bleeding, all besmattered and smeared in the blood of her heroes. In every village and hamlet, in every home and by every fireside there was weeping and mourning and anguish, and Rachael refused to be comforted.

"Upon the necks of the 5,000,000 of white people of the South, defeated, crushed and impoverished, there rested the weight of 4,000,000 brutal, vicious ignorant, freed negroes.

"In addition to this came the carpet-bag rule, and our people, discouraged and disheartened, were forced to neglect all else in order to repair the ravages of war, were compelled to till the farms which heretofore had been tilled by negroes; and as a result school houses were neglected; the children were allowed to grow up in ignorance; the per cent. of illiteracy increased and the old South, under the accumulation of its misfortunes, and North Carolina went down, down, till it stood at the very bottom of the list. For the last thirty-five years the Southern people have been falling further and further behind their brethren of the North in the race for wealth. A solution of the difficulty has been earnestly sought, and only recently have the leaders of public thought and public sentiment found the only true remedy, viz: Universal Education.

"I greet you, my friends, on the dawn of the greatest educational activity in the history of the South. And the South having at last shaken off every evil effect of slave labor, having at last shaken off the last vestige of defeat, stands up and demands that her children be educated, skilled and trained in order to better prepare them for the battle of life and render them larger producers of wealth. And North Carolina has caught the contagion, for last year her Legislature dug down into the public treasury and appropriated $100,000 for the benefit of the public schools of the State. That $100,000 would not mean much for the schools as a whole, but to the thinking man is a straw that indicates very clearly the truth of the public thought. This year North Carolina is to vote on an amendment providing an educational qualification in the exercise of suffrage, and the gubernatorial candidate of the great Democratic party is making his campaign on the sole issue of education, and on every stump in the State promises to extend and increase the public schools of the State. And as a result of this educational activity I expect to see public schools growing up within easy reach of every child in the State, with longer school terms and better teachers. I expect to see smaller towns establishing complete public school systems similar to your own.

"And I expect more academies and colleges to be built, and the endowment and usefulness of those we already have to be greatly increased. Nothing short of this must be done, if we would take our place in the very forefront of the progressive modern movement.

"I'll tell you the greatest producer of wealth in your city. It is not your factories, nor your warehouses, nor your storehouses, no any other industry you may possess; but the greatest wealth producer is your schools and colleges. Tear down every factory, every warehouse, every storehouse. And an educated citizenship will rise and build more and better ones. Tear down your churches and your school houses and ere the new century about to dawn shall have reached its meridian, your city will have become a barren place unfit for the habitation of man. An educated citizenship will increase our industries, stimulate inventions and multiply the production of wealth.

"The south must work out her destiny along this line, hence education becomes her greatest need. Where could be found a more inviting field for missionary zeal to spend itself? Where could modern philanthropy be more profitably employed? Send your money, if you will, to China, to Africa, to Brazil, and the waste places of the earth, to teach those who sit in darkness something of righteousness, godliness and truth, but don't, I pray you, forget the poor, miserable little ragged urchin at your own door, growing up in ignorance and viciousness and in crime. By all means contribute something toward the improvement of conditions elsewhere, but don't I beg you, forget our poor Southland just wrenching herself free from the last thong that held her foot, and with mighty effort just struggling forward into the glorious brightness of the dawning morning. We must help her forward, and to do this we must have more schools and better. And every little child must have the benefit of school opportunities. It is no longer a question of desire on the part of parent or pupil, but it is a question of most urgent necessity and need, but our State and the entire South must say to its children, not you may, but you must, attend the public school at least six months every year. Compulsory attendance upon school opportunities must be the watchword of the hour. And the day is not far distance when every little child in Greensboro will be required to attend your school here, and your school board will be ready to provide books for those too poor to furnish them. And then, and not till then, will your school accomplish its highest purpose, for then the radiating and uplifting influence of this institution there will go out into every by-way and every corner of your city, and every little destitute, homeless child will feel the gracious warmth of culture and refinement and training, and every little heart in your city will feel the rapturous inspiration of a high resolve. Then industries will grow up, wealth will increase, vice will decrease, lowlessness will decrease, and you will have a city active and progressive, filled full of men and women who love their neighbors, their country, and their God. In universal education alone is there universal salvation.

"And who is to do this work? To the teacher must be committed the charge of carrying it into effect. And we do not look primarily to our mill owners, to our factory owners, or to any leader of industry, for our greatest advancement, but we look to the school teacher, for without him we would ever remain dependent upon the untrained, unskilled and unproductive labor of ante-bellum days. And these teachers upon whom so much devolves must be men and women faithful and true, philanthropic and patriotic. Men and women who are in love and sympathy with child life. We want no salary earners, no place hunters, but we want men and women who work in the joy of the working. Your State needs you; its advancement depends upon you. In this profession you will find few dollars and little reward save consciousness of duty well performed and of noble service rendered your State in the hour of her need. In those years of earnest trial our Southland demanded and received the sacrifice of its youth-hood and its manhood, and shall we of today fail to respond to her cry of necessity and need? Are there not many young men and women among the alumni of this institution who are willing to devote their lives to the greatest service demanded of Southerners since Lee owned a conqueror and the blue and the gray broke bread together?

"I love my State for the hardships she has endured; I love her for her abject poverty; but more than all I love her for her vast army of little helpless children who are crying out for instruction in the way of uprightness and of truth. I represent no political creed, I stand for no religious dogma. I stand for the little children of the State, the same class of whom the Master said, 'Suffer them to come unto me.' "

The first part of the program was concluded with a vocal solo, "Goodbye to Summer," sung by Miss Grace Clary. Miss Clary has a wonderfully strong and full voice, and her rendition of the solo elicited hearty applause.

The program was concluded with "The Shades of Shakespeare's Women," by students of the High School. The following was the caste:

You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to moke you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. For sale by Grissom & Fordham.

STORY OF UNREQUITED LOVE.

A tragedy in real life was enacted in Greensboro yesterday, when a respectable white woman from Alamance county came here for her daughter, who was living in a disreptuable house in this city. The young woman, who was good looking and presented an intelligent appearance, was perfectly willing to return home with her mother. Her story was a sad one and told of the perfidity of man. She had left home and gone to Winston, where she earned her living by working in a factory.

While in Winston she became acquainted with a young man who was constant in his attentions and profuse in his protestations of undying love. His professed love was returned and they were engaged to be married.

Here the baseness of the man showed itself. Before the wedding day he deserted the unsuspecting maiden, and, when it was too late, she found that she had been betrayed

To escape from her surroundings, and to spite her lover, as she expressed it, she came to Greensboro, and by accident or otherwise found an abiding place in the house in which she was found Here her mother with the assistance of an officer, discovered her. She went before a magistrate, and after telling her story, swore out papers to get possession of her personal effects

Cured by Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure

"I suffered over two years with Indigestion and Nervous Dyspepsia, unable to eat or sleep. I tried several physicians and different remedies, but they only helped me for a short time. A friend advised me to take Johnson's Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken three boxes, and am now feeling better than I have for two years. Have a good appetite, sleep well and have none of the symptoms of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, while I have gained ten pounds in weight within a couple of months. The real rough rider is the man who rides the river with a twisting, squirming log for a saddle, on which he stands, balancing himself to its every motion. If his coolness fails or his nerve gives way, disaster and death reach out for him.

It's the giving way of the "nerve" which proves fatal to so many a man. Perhaps he is simply crossing the street, as he has done ten thousand times. He hears a shout, stops, hesitates, gets "rattled" and is run over. When a man finds that his memory plays him false often, when he starts off to get something and forgets what he went for, when he knows he has locked the front door and yet an irritating uncertainty compels him to get up and verify his knowledge, then that man is in danger at any minute when confronted by a trifling danger. He is unnerved.

This condition can be perfectly cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It strengthens the stomach, nourishes the nerves, and purifies the blood. It contains no alcohol, whisky or other intoxicant.

"The reason I delayed writing was because I wanted to wait one year after I had taken the medicine before giving my statement, and now I can send a good, conscientious testimonial," writes Chas. H. Sergeant, Esq., of Plain City, Madison Co., Ohio. "During the summer and fall of 1896 I became all "run down," nerves were out of order and stomach out of order. I wrote to Dr. Pierce for advice. He said I had general debility, and advised Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and, thanks to you for your advice, I used six bottles; and since I stopped taking it, about one year ago, I have not taken any medicine of any kind, and have been able to work every day. My appetite is good, I can eat three square meals a day, I do not feel that miserable burning in the stomach after eating, and my blood and nerves are in good shape."

Blood Troubles: Cancer, Scrofula, Old Sores, Rheumatism, Contagious Blood Poison, Chronic Ulcers.

As the blood contains all the elements necessary to sustain life, it is important that it be kept free of all impurities, or it becomes a source of disease, poisoning instead of nourishing the body, and loss of health is sure to follow. Some poisons enter the blood from without, through the skin by absorption, or inoculation; others from within, as when waste products accumulate in the system and ferment, allowing disease germs to develop and be taken into the circulation. While all blood troubles have one common origin, each has some peculiarity to distinguish it from the other. Contagious Blood Poison, Scrofula, Cancer, Rheumatism, Eczema and other blood diseases can be distinguished by a certain sore, ulcer, eruption or inflammation appearing on the skin. Every blood disease shows sooner or later on the outside and on the weakest part of the body, or where it finds the least resistance. Many mistake the sore or outward sign for the real disease, and attempt a cure by the use of salves, liniments and other external applications. Valuable time is lost and no permanent benefit derived from such treatment.

BLOOD TROUBLES REQUIRE BLOOD REMEDIES; the poison must be completely and permanently eradicated—the blood reinforced, purified and cleansed, or the disease goes deeper and saps the very life. Mercury, potash and arsenic, the treatment usually prescribed in this class of diseases, are violent poisons, even when taken in small doses—never cure, but do much harm by adding another poison to the already overburdened, diseased blood.

SSS

S. S. S., Nature's own remedy, made of roots and herbs, attacks the disease in the blood, antidotes and forces out all impurities, makes weak, thin blood rich, strong and healthy, and at the same time builds up the general health. S. S. S. is the only purely vegetable blood purifier known, and the only one that can reach deep-seated blood troubles. A record of 50 years of successful cures proves it to be a reliable, unfailing specific for all blood and skin troubles.

Free Medical Treatment.—Our Medical Department is in charge of skilled physicians, who have made blood and skin diseases a life study, so if you have Contagious Blood Poison, Cancer, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Eczema, an Old Sore or Ulcer, or any similar blood trouble, write them fully for advice about your case. All correspondence is conducted in strictest confidence. We make no charge for this service. Book on blood and skin diseases free. SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.

THE TWO SIDES—THE REVIVAL.

It should be a source of extreme congratulation to those among us whose hearts are with those children of North Carolina who cannot look to their parents for educational advantages, but must look to the State instead, that the young men of the Commonwealth should be taking such magnificent ground as that occupied by Prof. D. B. Smith in his alumni address last night. What makes it more significant is the fact that Prof. Smith, while giving the full weight due the material value of education, does not lose sight of the fact that it is only one side of the question. Education is valuable because it produces wealth, very valuable. But it is unutterably more valuable because it produces mind and soul development. We must not lose sight of this fact, and put the greatest stress upon the least important point because it is more apparent. If, as the Telegram remarked some days ago, the South would enjoy the blessings of wealth and industry and material progress without becoming commercialized, we must in this transition cling to fundamental principles, and bear well in mind that material wealth alone is not a worthy ideal.

Prof. Smith spoke of the educational revival in the South. It is well that it has begun. Its effect is best felt in the towns and cities. In the rural districts of this State its effect has been little more than an additional longing among those parents who have already awakened to the importance of educating their helpless children, only to find that they were unable to give them anything more than the merest apology for it. And even fewer of the parents have been awakened to the importance resting upon them as parents to at least try to do something to lift their children out of the dense darkness to which they seem doomed than one would suppose.

We are glad to see young men like Prof. Smith taking their hearts and heads together into this business—the enlistment of heart is as important as that of the head. A great obligation rests upon men of education and means—teachers no more than others. The revival of longing must be followed by the revival of opportunity, till they both penetrate the remotest nook of the State.

IS CHURCH INFLUENCE GROWING?

A camp meeting parson will usually remark when casually meeting a stranger, that religion is, after all, the only real thing worthy of striving for in this life; and did he lay claims to being a philosopher, he could add that it is the most important thing in the life of a nation. This is true, for certain it is that a nation's character is determined largely, and its morals wholly, by its religion. This fact, however, is not what we wish to discuss at this time, and only mention it by way of preface to some figures regarding church membership in the United States.

The Chicago Inter-Ocean undertakes to refute the widespread belief that church influence is on the wane in this country, and in its attempt to do so, quotes statistics from the United States census. The Washington Post summarizes the Inter-Ocean's results as follows:

It shows that there has been a steady growth in church membership in the United States since 1870. The census of 1890, it declares, made it clear that the percentage of increase in church membership was heavier in the cities than in the country. The increase in population from 1880 to 1890 was 25 per cent. The increase in church membership was 42 per cent. One hundred and twenty-four cities, having an aggregate population of 13,989,000, reported a church membership of 5,302,000. In the whole country the statistics showed that one person in every 3.03 is a church member. In the cities one in every 2.64 is a church member.

Religion was never more on the minds and in the hearts of the people than it is now. The recent Ecumenical Conference in New York was a magnificent demonstration of the power of Christianity, and its primacy as a factor in human affairs. The Inter-Ocean finds that the annual reports from denominational sources indicate that the increase of 42 per cent. in church membership between 1880 and 1890 has been more than maintained in the last decade. If this be true, the Inter-Ocean says, the percentage of increase in church membership in cities like New York and Chicago would be 17 per cent. greater than the increase in population.

This is very reassurring. While it is a very easy matter to prove most anything by figures, it is very gratifying to read those used by the Inter-Ocean. One of the most interesting things in connection with them is the showing that the increase in church membership has been greatest in the large cities, the very place where most people supposed the increase least. Another thing is that this does not take into consideration the church influence outside of the active membership, nor the semi-religious organizations and philanthropic bodies inspired by the churches. It may be, in spite of these figures, that the direct influence of the churches has not increased, but it certainly a fact that their indirect influence has. We mean by this, the influence of churches on society, and upon individuals who are not connected with any church. This influence is indirect, and mostly unknown to the recipients, but no less sure and valuable.

WHAT THE BOER ENVOYS ASK.

Yesterday the Boer envoys sent to this country to persuade the President or Congress to "stop" the British in South Africa, were received by Mr. McKinley as any other three private citizens of a foreign government would have been received. The President stated to them, no doubt, that he was glad to meet them, but he took pains to add that he could not "do anything for" them, as the saying goes in this land of the free, as our friendly offices had already been offered to Great Britain, and rejected.

As these friendly offices have been rejected, and also as England has said emphatically that she will tolerate no interference from any source, and has shown, too, that she meant what she said, it is a little cheeky in the Boers to ask us to meddle further in the matter. They certainly must have gotten the impression somehow that we are spoiling to help the downtrodden who are fighting for the privilege of down-treading some one else. Our friendly offices having been rejected, we could engage in no intervention that did not amount to a demand, and to be effectual in anything except incurring the ill will of England, must have armed force behind it. This the Boer ambassadors ask us to do.

It is claimed that ninety per cent. of the people of the United States are in sympathy with the despairing Boers. This statement, together with the town meetings, and the hundred and one expressions of sympathy, and the much talking of members of Congress, has deceived the Boers. And they will learn rather suddenly that there is quite a difference in these things and an action by this government that might provoke war, and, to say the very least of it, would be very disagreeable to a friendly power.

This is not the first time the enthusiasm of the country has been aroused for a weaker people struggling against a strong one. Neither is it the first time it has been stirred in the supposed cause of democracy against monarchy. As we have before remarked, almost at the dawn of our national existence the country was stirred into sympathy for what was considered republicanism in France. And nearly fifty years ago, as suggested by Senator Allen, when Kossuth visited the United States the people went wild in their sympathy and enthusiasm for the Hungarians in their struggle against Austria and Russia, but the government refused to be dragged into any trouble with those powers. The Boers, when told of the position of the government, seemed like reasonable men, to take the proper view of the matter.

It Wasn't the Bell.

The Lewiston (Me.) Journal tells a story of a minister in a prayer meeting who cut short "Uncle" Ira, a prosy old deacon, by ringing a bell at the end of five minutes. But after doing so he felt sorry, because he had apparently hurt the feelings of an old father in Israel. So he arose and went down to "Uncle" Ira and put his hand on the old man's shoulder.

"'Uncle' Ira," said he, "I'm sorry for that. I ask your pardon and"—

"Uncle" Ira looked up, the anger still in his eyes.

"Why, ye don't think I set down on account of that pesky little bell of your'n, do ye?" he demanded.

"Why, I—I—well, I thought"— stammered the minister.

"Waal," said "Uncle" Ira, "ye needn't think no more about that bell. I want to tell ye right now that no bells ain't ever goin to set me down in this vestry where I've talked goin on 29 years. I want to tell ye right now, young man, if I hadn't jest swallered my chaw I'd 'a' kept on talkin till I'd 'a' 'lucidated that p'int if it had 'a' took me all night."

They Spilled Over.

Marjorie never cries when any little mishap befalls her and has been known to sustain without shedding a tear severe bumps that have rapidly acquired a black and blue aspect. But the other day Araminta, her dearly loved and tenderly cherished doll, fell into the open grate and received a contusion of the nose which was most unpleasant to contemplate. Marjorie winked very hard for a few minutes, and then, running with her injured Araminta to her mother, she buried her head in her lap, sobbing, "Oh, mamma, I don't want to cry, but my tears have all come unfastened!"

Where the Paint Went.

"I thought you were working on Jay Krank's new house," said the house painter's friend.

"And did he do it?"

"Yes, that is where he put most of it."—Philadelphia Press.

PEOPLE WHO, UNDER ENGLISH LAW, MAY LAUGH AT THE POLICE.

The Various Classes of Persons In Great Britain Who Cannot Be Arrested—Royalty, as a Matter of Course, Is First on the List.

The other day at the Westminster (England) county court a warrant for the arrest and committal of a solicitor had to be extended for four months more, as, though the solicitor was walking about the streets in the sight of the police, they dared not lay a finger on him. Even the judge seemed surprised that the man could not be arrested. But it is probable he never will be arrested, for, as he carries a charm on his person in the form of a brief, his body cannot be seized. This is because no one engaged on business at a law court can be arrested for any breach of the civil law. If you happen to owe a debt, to have a judgment delivered against you and to be committed to prison for not paying, of course you can be arrested under ordinary circumstances, but if you are subpœnaed as a witness you cannot be arrested while going to the place, while staying there to give evidence or while returning home, and you may feel sure that the courts will stick up for you.

There are many other people who can laugh at the police. Of course no member of the royal family can be arrested under any circumstances. Servants of the royal household also have great privileges in this way. Should one of the royal servants commit a crime at the command of the crown he could not be arrested. As the crown can do no wrong, of course any order the crown should give would be considered right, and Bobby would not dare to make an arrest.

Then members of parliament, though they can be arrested for some things, are exempt in certain cases where ordinary citizens would certainly be run in. If a member of the house of commons commits a crime, he can be arrested like any other citizen, but if it is a case of contempt of court, such as not paying debts, he can snap his fingers at the police during the greater part of the year—that is to say, he cannot be arrested while parliament is sitting nor for 40 days before and 40 days after the session. This gives him exemption during about nine-tenths of the year.

Of course a peer enjoys the same good fortune, and so does a peeress in her own right. But in their case the privilege is still greater, for they cannot be arrested on a civil process at any time, whether parliament is sitting or not. In fact, if the heir to a peerage happens to be in prison for any offense not criminal, he is liberated the moment he succeeds to the title.

Foreign embassadors may commit any offense, from drunkenness up to murder, without running the slightest risk of seeing the inside of an English prison. And not only have the embassadors themselves this privilege, but their secretaries, coachmen, cooks, valets, etc., are equally favored individuals, for the theory is that an embassador is useless without his dinner, his drives, his shaves and the like.

When an embassador commits a crime, all that can be done is to ask his government to recall him. But, of course, if he went about the streets knocking many people down he would certainly be arrested and held temporarily. But he could not be tried and punished. The foreign embassador's house, family and servants are looked upon as if they were in their own country. Under no circumstances could a policeman or bailiff break into the house or arrest any of the inhabitants.

Soldiers, while on service, could run up debts, refuse to pay, and if a judge, after ordering them to pay, without result, issued a warrant for their arrest and committal, no policeman dare execute it unless the amount were over $150. Navy men enjoy the same privileges, but no doubt they seldom get the opportunity of exercising them.

The clergy are another class of men who are sometimes secure against arrest. A clergyman cannot be arrested when he is celebrating divine service or conducting the celebration of rites for the dead; nor can he be touched when going to or returning from either of these duties. Any one breaking the law in this respect might be punished with as much as two years' imprisonment with hard labor.

On Sundays we are all privileged. No one can be arrested on Sunday except for treason, felony or breach of the peace. If any one tries it on with you, you can resist up to the point of killing him.

A curious rule in connection with arrest is not generally known—if a policeman comes along after a fight or an assault, he can make no arrest without a warrant.—London Tit-Bits.

"Why did Mrs. Frizzington, the rich widow who furnished all the money for the business she and you have started, want the name of the firm to be 'Rootle & Frizzington' instead of 'Frizzington & Rootle,' as it ought to be, seeing that she is much more heavily interested than you?"

"She didn't want to be referred to as 'the senior partner.'"—Chicago Times-Herald.

WINE OF CARDUI

WOMEN WHO WORK.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Aug. 12.

Though only 19 years old, I suffered from pains and female troubles two years. Last spring I got so bad I had to quit work. I had to support myself, and could not afford a high-priced doctor. I got one bottle of Wine of Cardui and that made me feel better. Have now used several bottles and am well. My mother used the Wine for Change of Life and was greatly relieved.

MISS MARGARET WALSH.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Many girls and women find it necessary to earn their own living in various kinds of employment. Their work is often so hard and confining that the health breaks down. Their delicate constitutions are unfitted for tiresome tasks. Weakness nearly always makes its appearance in the peculiarly delicate womanly organs. Constant standing on the feet, and coming and going at the beck of a superintendent or foreman, induces falling of the womb, leucorrhœa, headache and backache. The pay of women workers is often so notoriously small that when sickness comes they have no money to engage skillful physicians. To them Wine of Cardui is truly a blessing. It cures them of their ills at a small cost, and they can act as their own physicians. No doctor can do as much for "female troubles" as Wine of Cardui.

A STORY OF DAN RICE.

The Great Clown Did Not Forget the Tent Man's Bill.

One story of Dan Rice, the veteran circus clown, illustrates his strict sense of honesty and gratitude for favors. Once he was stranded in Cincinnati, the story goes, and was unable to start a show on the road because he had no tent and could not raise money to buy one. The tent Rice needed would be worth $2,500. The manager of a tent concern sent for the clown one morning and, taking him to his factory, showed a big tent that was just finished. Rice looked at it with hungry eyes. He turned away, with a sigh.

"Fine tent, don't you think?" asked the canvas maker.

"It's yours," said the tent man.

Rice was like a playful kitten in an instant.

"I believe there is a lot of money in you yet," said the canvas man. "You take that tent and start your show, and if you ever get money enough to pay me for it the price is $2,500."

Within two weeks Rice was on the road with a show and began a successful career. For 15 years he never referred to the tent, although he often met the man who made it. One afternoon he asked the tent man to be his guest at one of his shows, then in Cincinnati. The two sat looking on, and Rice remarked:

"Fine show, don't you think?"

The canvas man declared that it certainly was.

"By the way," added Rice, "here's that $2,500 I owe you." He took a roll of bills out of his pocket and handed it to the tentmaker, who pocketed it without unrolling it. The old tent man loved to relate this story and always declared that the great men of this country were P. T. Barnum, John Robinson and Dan Rice.—New York Mail and Express.

THE BABY'S LITTLE JOKE.

It Worried the Fat Man, but He Tried to Enjoy It.

It happened in one of the late trains. Everybody was trying to get to sleep, and when the voice of a baby was suddenly lifted up in a robust wail it was not met with expressions of joy. It cried steadily from Spring Garden street to Columbia avenue. Then it accidentally dropped a pasteboard box it had. A very stout and, like his kind, very affable man across the aisle stooped heavily and picked it up.

The child stopped crying as it took it and promptly dropped it again. The man, thinking it an accident, picked it up once more. This time the baby actually smiled, and as he threw it down audibly cooed with delight. The man looked distinctly uncomfortable and became interested in something outside the window. The child looked at the box a moment, then at the man, and, seeing nothing else, resumed his wail, with much added wind. The look of despair resettled on the face of the woman with the headache, and she gave a convulsive shudder as she felt her head beginning to jump.

She gave one awful glance at the baby and then leaned over to the stout man, back of whom she was sitting. "My dear sir," said she, "I have a violent headache, and I am in misery. Won't you please pick up that box again?" And with a highly artificial smile he complied. Out of pure courtesy he became a box lifting automaton, his piles of adipose making each stoop come harder. But when he wiped the perspiration from his brow and staggered out of the car at Germantown he got a grateful smile from the afflicted woman, as well as every other passenger, that he felt paid him.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

AN ANCIENT BELIEF.

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of siatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the affliction is demoniac enough to warrant the belief. It has never been claimed that Chamberlain's Pain Balm would cast out demons, but it will cure rheumatism, and hundreds bear testimony to the truth of this statement. One application relieves the pain, and this quick relief which it affords is alone worth many times its cost. For sale by C. E. Holton, Druggist.

Ancient Cattle and Butchering.

The earliest records of Egypt depict a butcher cutting up an ox, exactly as it is done today outside of the great slaughtering establishments, with a knife that he sharpened upon a steel that hung at his side and providing cuts of meat precisely like ours. They used leather, and they did better tanning than we do; the blood, instead of being processed into fertilizing, was used for cooking purposes, and our Spanish friends never see a better bullfight than was daily purveyed for the delectation of those ancient "sports."

A little later in the world's history we find records of tricks being played in the cattle trade, for do not some historians aver that Jacob exercised undue influence upon the cows of Laban's herds as well as upon the ewes of his flocks? And others tell us that Zaph-u-to—otherwise known as "Joseph the Wise," stockbroker in chief for the Pharaoh Apophies, who, of course, was not known in the deal—cornered the cattle as well as the grain of all the country about.—Self Culture.

A Sure Test.

"Are you sure she is as gentle and patient and amiable as she seems?" asked the friend.

"Not quite sure," answered the young man who is in love, "but I'm going to find out."

"How?"

"I'm going to get her to call somebody up over a long distance telephone and then watch her."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Savage Publisher.

The late J. Schabelitz, the famous Zurich publisher and author, was a shrewd business man, an excellent linguist, a skillful writer and probably the most savage publisher who ever lived. When he accepted the famous memoirs of Count von Arnim, he wrote on the postal card with the acceptance the proviso, "I reserve the right to correct your infernally bad grammar."

To an aspiring poet who had submitted manuscript he answered by postal card: "I refuse to be disgraced by printing your doggerel. I don't return the copy because you didn't inclose enough postage. If you will send it, with the price of this card, I will send it to you, but I don't think the stuff is worth the expense on your part."

One of his postal cards to a novelist read about as follows: "For heaven's sake, come and take away the unnamable mass of paper you left here for me to look at!"

An ambitious historian was crushed by the following, written, like all of his correspondence, upon a postal card: "You are making the mistake of your life. You don't want to study history. You want to learn how to write."—Saturday Evening Post.

CATARRH CAN BE CURED BY

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

"DANGER IN THE EARTH AND AIR; DANGER EVERYWHERE."

In a leading hotel, in a great city, a famous and aged physician was conversing. Listening to his wise and sententious discourse, were a group of well dressed men, evidently lawyers, business men and commercial travelers.

My firm belief, is "that medical science is certain yet to show that all diseases without exception are caused by invisible germs which are living organisms. Here is the germ of that terrible disease diphtheria. Here is the bacillus of typhoid fever; and here is the still more dreadful bacillus of tubercle which causes that most destructive of all diseases, consumption. This of that very common and supposed incurable disease, catarrh."

"I wish, Doctor," said the traveling man, "that you would tell us about catarrh. I have had it for years, and I am thoroughly discouraged."

The Doctor answered. "Catarrh, like diphtheria, consumption, typhoid fever, and a host of other diseases, is the result of a microbe invading the blood and attacking specially the mucous membrane. This foul and most disgusting disease is especially prevalent in the United States and it is rare to meet one who is not, or has not been troubled more or less with it. How often is he or she obliged to remain at home from pleasant entertainments, deprive themselves of many intellectual treats, from fear of the disagreeable odor arising from catarrhal affections. In its worst phase, the patient becomes loathsome both to himself and his friends.

"I believe," continued this great physician, "that the true way to heal catarrh is to medicate the blood. This can be done only by powerful alteratives which act as blood purifiers."

Betsy A. Marett, of Manistee, Manistee Co., Mich., writes:

Dear Sirs:—For ten years I was a sufferer from general debility and chronic catarrh. My face was pale as death. I was weak and short of breath. I could hardly walk, I was so dizzy and had a ringing in my head all the time. My hands and feet were always cold. My appetite was very poor. On getting up in the morning, my head swam so I was often obliged to lie down again. I had awful pains in the small of my back. I had a continual feeling of tiredness. My muscular power was almost entirely gone, and I couldn't go half a dozen steps without stopping to rest, and often that much exercise caused me to have a pain in my side. It seemed as though the blood had left my veins. The doctors said my blood had all turned to water. I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I tried the best physicians in the state, but failed to get any relief. My husband got me a bottle of Johnston's Sarsaparilla. I took it, and then I bought another. When these had been used, I was somewhat improved in health. I continued its use, and felt I was growing stronger; my sleep was refreshing, and it seemed as if I could feel new blood moving through my veins. I kept on taking it, and now consider myself a well and rugged woman. I work all the time, and am happy. I am positive that the Sarsaparilla saved my life. The sick headaches I have had since childhood, have disappeared, and my catarrh has almost entirely left me. I cannot be too thankful for what Johnston's Sarsaparilla has done for me. I recommend all women who have sick headaches to use your Sarsaparilla.

He Drank Alone.

In the early days of Ventura, Cal., Dr. Bard established such a reputation for willingness to fight that few presumed to provoke his anger. He was once informed that the lawyer he had engaged to represent him in a certain case had sold out to the opposing side. "I'll cut his heart out," said Bard when the news came to him.

Shortly after that, walking with one of his friends, Dr. Bard met the lawyer on the street. "Come in and have a drink," said that worthy, and the three men, entering the barroom, ordered three glasses of whisky, which were put before them.

"Drink," said Dr. Bard to the lawyer.

"Not until you are ready," the lawyer politely replied.

"No, not with me," said Bard; "you drink now."

"Not until you drink," insisted the legal light.

Dr. Bard's pistol was out in a moment and pointed between the eyes of the man who had betrayed him. "Drink!" said he in a voice of thunder; "drink, I tell you!" The lawyer drank with avidity, and when he was through Bard and his friend threw their full glasses on the floor. "We don't drink with curs," said they and, turning their backs, walked out of the room.—San Francisco Argonaut.
